

HAESL Recognized as Manpower Developer

HAESL received the Manpower Developer Award from the Employees Retraining Board (ERB) on 25 April 2013. The MD award scheme aims to recognize companies which demonstrate outstanding achievements in manpower training and development. To be entitled to the MD award, HAESL went through the audit process in which the effectiveness of its strategies and practices in manpower training and development were reviewed and evaluated in accordance with a set of objective and stringent assessment criteria established by the independent Technical Consultant. With an aim to developing an industrial leading workforce, HAESL will continue to invest in staff training and development.

HAESL Director and General Manager, Richard Kendall (right), received the Manpower Developer Award from the Secretary for Labour and Welfare, the Hon. Cheung Kin-Chung Matthew (left).